

Care Agreement for Beneficiaries and Their Caregivers

As a WA Cares beneficiary choosing to hire an individual provider through Consumer Direct Care Network Washington, you will be responsible for managing their day-to-day work for you. It is important for both parties to have agreement about the care that will be provided. WA Cares encourages the use of this agreement with each of your caregivers, including caregivers who are family members. This is for your use with your caregiver and CDWA does not need a copy.

Please note that if you choose a home care agency for in-home care, they will create a plan of care for you.

Care Needs Identifier Worksheet

You may use this document to identify the care tasks you need help with, the type of assistance you need, and how many hours of help you are anticipating.

Care tasks include both activities of daily living and instrumental activities of daily living.

Activities of daily living, or ADLs, refer to the basic self-care tasks that an individual performs on a daily or regular basis to maintain their personal care and overall wellbeing.

Instrumental activities of daily living, or IADLs, refer to the tasks that are essential for independent living and managing one's home and life.

Below are descriptions of the tasks and types of assistance a caregiver can help you with.

| Type of Assistance                    | Description                                                                                                                                    |
